Theory of coupled lasers with laser-induced phase change. Lasing resonances are observed when a He-Ne laser beam is focused onto a titanium-doped yttrium aluminum garnet (TGG) disk in a strongly coupled regime, where the temperature of the disk exceeds the critical temperature of the host. This phenomenon allows the design of a novel type of single-mode laser diode, of particular interest in the field of terahertz generation. A general theoretical model of coupled lasers with laser-induced phase change is derived and compared to experimental observations. The model considers the effect of the phase change on the coupled laser dynamics, taking into account the spatial distribution of the phase change within the host and the laser medium. Furthermore, the model highlights the potential of our system to induce thermo-optic and thermo-acoustic resonances.

Parental perception of autism and perceived school-related problems in school children with autism spectrum disorder. The aim of this study is to investigate the perception of school problems by parents and teachers of children with autism spectrum disorders (ASDs). Parents and teachers completed a questionnaire of the Child Behavior Checklist and School Problem Inventory about children with ASDs. Over half of the parents thought their child had a problem with social communication, but over half of the teachers did not. Differences were found between the ASD children in terms of the percentage of parents and teachers who believed the child had a problem with social communication, communication and daily living, and intellectual function. These findings indicate that there are problems with parental and teacher perceptions in children with ASDs.

If you have any plans to grow your own vegetables, in this time of an economic downturn, you should start now and plant your garden. Begin your project from the bottom. It is important to plant the bulbs early and wait until your garden has soil. You must check the level of soil every two weeks and remove the gravel on your path. When planting bulbs, you should do not fill soil with shovel. This technique will work perfectly for planting bulbs, but it is not ideal for planting the rest of your vegetables. The bulb should grow, and the rest of the garden should be fertilized in the same way. You can plant vegetables in any weather. You do not need the big garden, but just 4 square meters can do. Remember that the soil should be rich, the pH 7-7.5 and the temperature 20-25 degrees Celsius. If
