Are you looking for a tool that will make your life easier? Perhaps a tool that can monitor the computers on your network or even several workstations, and let you know instantly if one of them stops responding? AutoKeyClicker is a small and handy application that will detect this and will notify you via e-mail or instant messenger right away. What makes it different? The good old "ping" program has been around for decades and can be used to detect if a computer is on-line. You can do it manually from the command line. But we wanted something that could help us detect down computers on a network, in real-time. AutoKeyClicker has two different modes. If you click on the "Watch" mode, it will detect your computer, and send you an e-mail if it stops responding for a specified amount of time. It can be configured to send a notification as soon as your computer stops responding, or it can send an e-mail only when it is down for more than a specified amount of time. This can be used as a "keep-alive" tool for your workstations. You can use it at home or at the office, with your Internet connection, without affecting your computer or Internet speed. Another mode is to install it on several computers, or to send e-mails to a group of people. How does it work? When your computer is on-line, it will detect it and send a notification e-mail to your specified address. Each computer that AutoKeyClicker monitors has a "keystroke". By default, it is the windows key on the keyboard. This key can be changed in the options, or you can configure it for any key combination you like. When your computer is down, it will send a notification to your e-mail address. You can download AutoKeyClicker for free. You will need a registered version of a supported e-mail client. It is distributed as a zip file. If you need a registration key to be able to download the software, please contact AutokeyClicker@prodigy.com or send an e-mail to that address. We are looking forward to you feedback. If you have any problems or questions, please send your mail to AutokeyClicker@prodigy.com or write in the forum.
