History and Development of Inertial Lasers by Noah Fielding

The first inertial range lasers were developed by John Starshine at the University of Notre Dame in Indiana in the early 1970s,1 but his lasing gas tubes were usually only operated as shaded-arc lamps, with the tube not utilized to its full potential. A later inertial range laser was developed by Pavel Zvyagin at the University of Notre Dame in 1976,2 and his first operational device was started in 1978.3 However, optical inversions due to laser mode competition at high pulse energies became a problem, and so Zvyagin expanded his laboratory with a second inertial
