Eternity Convergence Developer: ETXW Corp. (Source: Nomaxers: Using the latest research into nano-technology and space-time-temporal feedback of the universe, the ETXW team has managed to place and synchronize an advanced human consciousness onto a large war vessel designed to be the support to a network of nanoprobes spread out through the bulk of the ship. This process is referred to as “Hivesyncing” and while the technology is nearly perfectly synchronized, it is known that there is a certain amount of variation between all the nanotechnology in the ship. This means that despite the best attempts of the ETXW team, some quakes and malfunctions during the synchronization process can happen. As such, its 100% guaranteed that you will encounter some sort of unexpected malfunction while playing the game. It’s just something that happens in the universe. And it’s not a flaw of the game. Although there might be malfunction, there is a 100% chance

Eternity Guards is an old game that I actually wrote a very early version of with a friend of mine in 2001 or 2002. The idea came from a game we used to play called MindSnacks. The idea was to introduce a fantasy version of Valhalla, a battle for eternal glory. Our names for it were 'Eternity' and 'Siegfried'. Siegfried was intended to be a Norse gothic warrior, and Eternity the more typical fantasy archetype. We played around with names like The Grim Bitch and The Gloryland, but ultimately the game turned out to be far too long, and it didn't strike the right balance between strategy and randomness. Eternity was always going to be a fantasy game, but since I had made a Viking mythology version of Valhalla, the 'Eternity' name stuck for me. The main idea of the game is a fantasy alternative to Valhalla. Scandinavian mythology is a thematic focus - the same style, ornaments and atmosphere where heroes fight for a place in eternity, there will be only one. This is a world of magic and tactics. Style - handpaint. Battle Royale PVP fighting game with strategy elements. On a small one map, from 2 to 6 players fight at the same time, who are divided into equal teams. Fast matches have a maximum duration of 10 minutes, so the maps are not big, but well designed for energetic battles with fun running around the map in the heat of magical effects. Each map has all 4 times of year, all are available on the same map to increase variability. At the end of each match, there will be a unique anti-cheat system based on feedback and ratings of players for the subsequent successful formation of the effective teams. Before the battle, players appear in a room where they have 30 seconds to equip and buy clothes, weapons, bottles and recharge abilities. There is an interaction with the environment in the form of teleports and places of interest (landslides, lava, waterfalls, lightning, tornado) that block the way and can inflict damage on the opponent. The tactic is to activate the character selection circle (menu wheel) via a hotkey for the interaction: for enemies - magic, weapon strikes or debuffs; for allied characters - useful buffs, damage resistance, acceleration, healing etc. There is a teleport on the map with an 5 sec activation delay, the next character can only be passed with the same delay. There is

## (1) FREDERICK "ROBERT" BARNEY (2) Mental Notes ( dates have now been sorted out and corrected ) The first three decades of the 20th century (2) Fred Day (1912-1994) Tracy's note : Hardwick's [son] Bobby [Day] is John's grandson. Thus, Fred and John's grandfathers were brothers. Barney's father, Alfred, was an original member of the American Ryder Cup team. My Comments I found out about Fred Day because Tracy Day worked at Widener and loaned me a bunch of records from his family archive. He has spent many years researching events in South African golf history and then writing the results. In one article he has written and published about the success of Jack Blackburn and Heines Bouwer in the 1919 South African Open, he includes this paragraph: "The 1919 South African Open Championship was held in the Colony Club Tournament Course, Durban, from 15 August to 21 August in that year;

Is Flourish Street Finishing? Jeff and the team at Flourish Street have been doing a great job on the layout of my home for the past six years. Recently they mentioned that they were missing a few things from their original work order that I mentioned in the beginning, and wanted to be sure everything was okay. This is good because it's something that I'm sure comes up with every house on the road. In looking at what Jeff is saying, I realize that I have a couple of projects that haven't been completed, but if I were to do them today, would be a simple DIY project for the most part. All that being said, I'm a tad OCD about my home and didn't want to be left behind in the home improvement spree.

Release from the gingival sulcus of the gingival crevicular fluid in the rat. Release of substances from the gingival crevicular fluid into the peri-gingival tissues and into the saliva of the rat after tooth chewing was investigated. The amount of gingival crevicular fluid in the rat was 5.4 microliter/cm<sup>2</sup>, or about 5 times the amount in the human. The release of substances from the gingival tissue into the gingival crevicular fluid occurred rapidly and was apparently constant for 30 minutes. The release from the gingival tissue was only about 1/10 the amount of that occurring from the roots of the extracted teeth. During the 30 minutes after placement of an occlusal prosthesis, little or no substance was released from either the gingival tissue or the teeth, and release into the saliva was negligible.
