A story of curiosity, death and lots of swimming. _____ Hey everyone, I'm Cullen, a Software Developer from the Weird & Wonderful City of San Francisco, California. I've spent countless hours as a web developer and enjoy a number of hobbies outside of the realm of programming. I'm very fortunate to have found a place where I can use my skills to help others in the community. I enjoy swimming and reading, my wife (Sandra) and my dog (Triska) are my favorite things in the world. I'm a resident of the San Francisco Bay Area, where I was born and raised. I'm originally from the Midwest and travel a great deal as I work. I was raised in a loving and supportive family environment and grew up surrounded by nature. My love of science and mathematics was prevalent in my childhood and I always had a strong drive to learn about the world around me. It's hard to define why I loved this subject so much but I just did, it was always fun to me and interesting. I earned a Bachelor's degree in Chemistry at the University of Missouri and am now currently pursuing a graduate degree in Software Engineering. My love for programming has been fueled by the open source community that thrives in our region. I've had a few years of programming experience but I'm not really known as a "game developer". That said, I've enjoyed working on projects of all sizes and genres. These days, I prefer working on Unity Projects for myself as I enjoy the fast and easy development environment. My favorite projects to date are The Chronicles of Quiver Dick (Quiver Dick's Terrible Tale for Terrible Parents to Read to Their Equally Terrible Children) and Deported (Deported 1 and 2). The environment in which I work also influences what I enjoy working on. I enjoy creating interactive stories and games that take you to some pretty strange places. I've been a games tester for over two years and have taken on an assortment of different positions. While working on Deported, I was tasked with testing each version for technical issues. I also worked as a quality assurance tester while creating Deported 2: Build That Wall. While creating the story, I was also developing the actual gameplay. Each project is a bit different but I've found that the tasks I'm assigned range from troubleshooting issues to testing the user interface. I'm always learning something new, whether it's on a new tech to the coding itself,

Adventure of a Lifetime is a 1992 American/Canadian made-for-television action adventure film written by Don Bluth (of the animated film series The Secret of NIMH) and directed by Robert Houston. The film features the voices of Gene Wilder (as Professor Alexander Fleming), Michael Jeter (as Professor Jeff Miller), Will Ray (as Shrimp) and Ringo Starr (as himself, as Willie the cab driver). Robbie Stevens, Mark Moses, Stephen Bitt, and B.J. Ward are also featured. The film was co-produced by Wild Eye Releasing and Fandor Film. Inspired by the accounts of Fleming's quest for a synthetic penicillin during World War II, and inspired by Fleming's later book, The Running Medical Reagent Manual, the film was intended to be a family romantic-adventure-comedy film, a cross between Casablanca and Forrest Gump. It originally premiered as eight one-hour television movies over the course of 1987 and then was sold to the networks upon completion. It aired as part of the Nickelodeon Film Festival on November 30, 1992. Plot At the beginning of World War II, common lab assistant Alexander Fleming experiments with various antiseptics in labs around the world, including a lab in London, England. He learns about a new post-war era that is more lenient with research errors and is thus willing to put much effort into a new penicillin vaccine that he hopes will stop Russian tuberculosis, which spreads quickly during outbreaks of the disease. Fleming has completed his research and manuscript, and goes to see a British general about his findings. U.S. Army Captain Herr Wolfe (Jonathan Winters) is sent to Ireland to lead a medical team to see what the effects of Fleming's drug are. Along the way, Wolfe meets a recovering addict, Carolyn Abbott (Kathleen Lloyd). She is also coincidentally selected to go on the medical team that will investigate the effects of Fleming's penicillin vaccine. At the Dublin College of Medicine, Dr. Jeffery Miller (Gene Wilder) confronts Jeff Fleming (Michael Jeter), who is working as a doctor in the Bronx. Miller is told to study Fleming's work, and is astonished at a new faster-acting vaccine. He realizes that he cannot write a paper about his findings unless he looks at Fleming's work. Shocked, Miller angrily embarks on a race against time for presentation of his findings
