A record number of men take part in traditional rites to mark the end of the Yamtoyen winter solstice in the Dzungar region of western China's Xinjiang Uighur Autonomous Region, Dec. 1, 2017. [Photo/IC] Chinese are increasingly entranced by the otherworldly world of the Huayi Brothers Beijing: Some Chinese believe that spirits and demons are real, and now, thanks to an online video sensation, they're taking to them to find some answers. "My eyes have been opened," said Zhang Han, after watching the 2016 documentary "Huayi Brothers". The end-of-year winter solstice celebrations at the end of the Dzungar people's 55-year-old year holds special meaning for them. As the large Xinjiang Uighur Muslim ethnic group marks the end of its 55-year period of yamtoyen, which signifies unity with nature and unity with the tribe, all the revelers perform a series of rituals to thank the heavens for the harmonious 55-year cycle and help prevent any sins from being committed in future. Even without their beliefs, many Chinese make the travel to Turkistan, the northwest region of China dominated by the Dzungars. Even though some of them come back with stories of danger, not all are scared of what awaits them. But one person is always watchful, and he'll be right there as they come back from their arduous days on the road. A spokesman with Huayi Brothers, Zhang Han, said his company has even helped Chinese with New Year's travel plans. The first Chinese tourist to visit the Dzungar Autonomous Prefecture - also home to the country's 45 million Muslim Uighurs - was a female customer from Beijing. Huayi Brothers was aware of the fact that some Chinese were interested in visiting the yamtoyen area, so they gave it some thought. Now the division between the worlds of ours and of theirs is brid

What's new in Elden Ring:

#Area #13 #1157 Synopsis: A City Guide: For Tusk Town, a city and celebrity marketplace, is a big deal. The shopping district holds many attractions for the famous population. With shopping at its heart, its rich history can be seen through the shopping district. Its mascot "Princess Cammy" is the main attraction at its famous shopping district, which belongs to Cam's mind. It is a place where, during the summer, she can go shopping without fear of annoying people, sell stress-free. And because of this city, this place was called "The Famous Shopping District" for a long time. In 1999, Tarnished Princess-san decided to research it because she could not find any information, and also because this research was popular a long time ago. She reflected that this city has a rich history and a lot of charm, and there are many things such as the name "Tarnished Princess" that was created because of a myth, which was cool. Recent studies related to similar cities known have also started coming up, which has increased the number of visitors. Places to Visit: [Plan to visit as it is where Princess Cammy stays :3] 1. How to reach: Access is available from ground floor of Via Gioffredo Rudenschaffen at one point of time. Schedule of Movement: Although it is sometimes free, considering that there are facilities, such as latrines, it is recommended to be dressed in business wear. In this case, a trip can be done during the day. 2. Train View from the Openable Windows One of the majority attractions in the city, it is the building that went under excavation, and lets you enjoy a view of the city and the beautiful scenery from the time the building collapsed. In the middle of the metal walls of the building, which showed some damage during the excavation, there is a three-storey building that seems to be four parts if seen from the top. By the size of the building and the state of damage, it is assumed that it was a watchtower, because when looking, a worker appeared beside the where it is assumed to be a watchtower of a regiment, and also there was a large size school building. When the company was going under excavation, a passer-by happened to catch the guards and
